

CORPORATION TAX LAW SUSTAINED

Supreme Court Holds That Act
Aimed at Mining Companies Is Valid.

The supreme court yesterday held valid the so-called stamp tax which the state, through legislative act of last year, imposed on all corporations other than charitable, religious, insurance or irrigation companies where the incorporators are the sole beneficiaries. In brief, the law was intended to reach the big mining companies, which maintained that they should be taxed according to their assessed valuation and additional burdens with the annual state license. In effect, the decision means that franchises are taxable.

Some of the mining companies have paid the license tax under protest and others have not paid it at all. The effect of the decision is that the license tax must be paid before the 15th of this November, or any other November, unless the law in the meantime is repealed. A penalty of $100 attaches for failure to pay. The opinion was written by Associate Justice Erick and was concurred in by Chief Justice McCarthy and Associate Justice Straup. It came to the supreme court on appeal in a case styled Black Rock Copper Mining company against Charles S. Tingey, secretary of state. The case was first tried by District Judge M. L. Ritchie, who sustained the validity of the act. This decision is affirmed. The rate at which corporations must pay is based upon capitalization, as follows:

$10,000, $5; of more than $10,000 and not exceeding $25,000, $10; of more than $25,000 and not exceeding $50,000, $15; of more than $50,000 and not exceeding $75,000, $20; of more than $75,000 and not exceeding $100,000, $25; of more than $100,000 and not exceeding $200,000, $30; exceeding $200,000, $35.

TAG DAY CREATES RIPPLES OF FUN IN BUSINESS DISTRICT

Everybody Comes Through Cheerfully, but the Minimum Donation Is the One Best Bet—About Half of the Workers Suffer From Cold Feet on Balm Day.

Salt Lake was "raided" yesterday by a bevy of fair women, and the citizens surrendered with smiles—and coin.

It was "Tag day," the long-awaited and widely-heralded occasion when Zion's citizens had the opportunity to demonstrate the size of the charity streak in their makeup by the munificence of their donation. They did the honors in liberal style.

It was one of the most successful charity campaigns ever conducted here and the first of its kind. The results of "Tag day" will not be known until Monday, for the spoils will not be counted until then. They are now deposited in the Commercial National bank.

Hundreds of people were tagged, and everybody took his medicine gracefully. The leaders of the Young Women's Christian association, which organization conducted the event to raise a nucleus for their building fund, report that "Tag day" made a hit all along the line.

Just how much money was raised is unknown, as the boxes in which the coins were dropped were deposited in the bank unopened. They will be opened at 10 o'clock tomorrow forenoon by a committee consisting of Mrs. E. B. Critchlow, president; Mrs. G. R. Hancock, vice president; Mrs. M. A. Caffall, treasurer, and Mrs. J. M. Bowditch, chairman of the finance committee, all connected with the Y. W. C. A.

Epidemic of Cold Feet.

One hundred women faced the music and did the tagging and 100 more were suddenly stricken with that frigid feeling around their pedal extremities when the time to start the crusade arrived. In other words, it was planned to have 200 "tag" women on the streets, but 100 got "cold feet" and were among the missing when work started in.

Because of the sudden and unexpected reduction in the force of charity workers, only the business section of the city was covered. It was originally arranged to canvass the entire city, both residential and business sections, but the enthusiasm and ardor of one-half of the invading army of petitioners melted away on the eve of the battle.

The district canvassed extended from South Temple to Fifth South streets and from Second East to the railroad depot. Everybody who was tagged "came through," according to reports. Ten-cent pieces jinked into the boxes in an almost steady stream in many parts with more money. Two or three business men gave $25 each, according to Mrs. E. B. Critchlow, the Y. W. C. A. president.

Business blocks and stores were invaded, men and women were held up in the streets, and automobiles and carriages were tagged. Not one unpleasant incident was reported, but the fair raiders enjoyed humorous incidents in plenty.

Mrs. Critchlow's Statement.

Mrs. E. B. Critchlow, the president of the Y. W. C. A. and leading spirit in the venture, said to The Herald last night:

"We were most graciously received. In business offices, stores and on the streets the people greeted the 'tag women' very pleasantly. Not a disagreeable feature was recorded, but we met with all kinds of funny incidents. We got smiles and money."

"While the Salt Lake people contributed liberally, I will say that our total collection did not quite come up to expectations. I mean that the money contributed was not in proportion with that received in other cities, judging from what our members have informed me."

The district between South Temple and First South on Main street won first honors for liberality. People in that particular section simply showered the "tag women" with good-sized contributions. The employees of McCormick's bank, it is said, contributed more than any other institution in town.

"Tag day" created plenty of excitement and life in the business districts between the hours of 9 and 10 o'clock and made the store keepers short on small change. Everyone was held up willingly and, in return, they were given a tag. "I am tagged for the Young Women's Christian Association," was pinned on.

ITALIAN SAYS HE IS PERSECUTED BY PUPILS OF FRANKLIN SCHOOL

Since the opening of school this fall there has been a battle raging between the children of the Franklin school and an aged Italian named Marine, who owns a little home adjoining the school on the west. Several stories come from the battlefields as to who is at fault, if anybody, and what the exact fault is, if any. Marine declares the boys throw rocks at him any annoy him in many other ways. F. M. Poulson, principal of the Franklin school, says that the boys do not annoy, but the trouble is with Marine, who cares but little for the children.

Friday afternoon E. H. Marine, a son of the old man in question, reported to Superintendent Christensen that the boys at the school had again been throwing rocks. Marine reported that a large rock struck his father on the head, inflicting serious injury. He also reported that four or five windows had been broken. A strong protest was also made by Marine because the school board had filled in the grounds raising the school property several feet above that of Marine's.

Superintendent Christensen immediately called Mr. Poulson and ordered an investigation of the affair. Mr. Poulson reported that he was unable to find any injury on the old man or any windows broken.

Mr. Marine declares that since the opening of school the boys, morning, noon and hour and in the evening after school, spent the greater part of their time in annoying his father. He alleges that his father is an object of their continual abuse and no act is too low for the boys to commit against the old man. He says that it is the one joy of the boys in the neighborhood to find some new way in which to displease his father, and are at all times heaping their slander and abuse on him.

From the board of education and the school principal came another report. Superintendent Christensen said last evening that the complaints of Marine were made only because he wanted to dispose of his property to the school board, and he hoped this would be a means to force them to buy the ground. He says he is sure the old man is not being hurt by the boys and is of the opinion that Marine and his wife are always the first to start the battle.

Mr. Poulson said last evening he had ordered the children of the school not to annoy the old couple. He also said he had told Marine and his wife it would be best if they would remain in their house during the time the children were at play, for a short while until they ceased to think of anyone them. Marine refuses to stay in the house and the war between him and the children continues.

The juvenile court has received several complaints regarding the children at the school, but as yet nothing has been done. Guardello Brown said last evening he had ordered a man to investigate the trouble. He has not, however, received any report about the matter.

MAKES ASTONISHING CURES

Mi-o-na Tablets Cure Dyspepsia by Promptly Removing the Cause, or Money Back.

Mi-o-na is a scientific and effective remedy for the permanent cure of indigestion. Food is digested in the stomach by means of a churning movement of the walls of the stomach, which thoroughly mixes the food with the gastric or stomach juices.

If the muscular walls are flabby and lack tone or energy, the stomach cannot churn the food properly, and the digestive juices are not properly mixed with the food. This causes indigestion. The common symptoms are: Weight and fullness after meals, coated tongue, bad taste in mouth, discharges of wind from the mouth, and belching of sour material. Dyspepsia cannot be cured by taking a digester, such as pepsin, because pepsin simply digests food artificially, and not all of the food either, for it has no effect at all on starch food, such as potatoes, rice, oatmeal, bread, etc.

There is just one way to cure dyspepsia and stomach disorders, trivial or serious, and that is to tone up or put energy into the stomach walls so that they will be able to properly mix or churn the food.

Mi-o-na tablets cure stomach troubles by putting strength and energy into the stomach. They quickly arouse the stomach from its inaction, and in a short time it is able to do its work properly.

And bear in mind that when the stomach is in good condition, constipation disappears, also nervousness, drowsiness, night sweats, heartburn, etc.

F. C. Schramm, the druggist, sells Mi-o-na tablets under a rigid guarantee to do all that is claimed for them, or money back.

ROOF WORKER DROPS TO DEATH

George M. Peck Falls 45 Feet and Dies of Concussion of the Brain.

George M. Peck, one of the proprietors of the Liberty Sheet Metal Works, yesterday met his death by falling from the roof of the new Bailey & Sons warehouse.

Peck had been superintending the tin roofing of the building, and at the close of the day's work essayed to reach the street by sliding down the rope of the crane used in hoisting the material. He had barely grasped the rope when it broke, hurling him to the pavement, a distance of forty-five feet.

He was immediately taken to the private hospital of Dr. Joseph H. Robinson on Seventh South and State streets, where Dr. Fisher was called in consultation. When it was determined that the patient had sustained concussion of the brain, he was removed to the Holy Cross hospital, where he died shortly after 7 o'clock.

A widow and 4-months-old baby survive. Their home is on what is commonly called Cannon's farm, between Eighth and Ninth West and Tenth and Eleventh South streets.

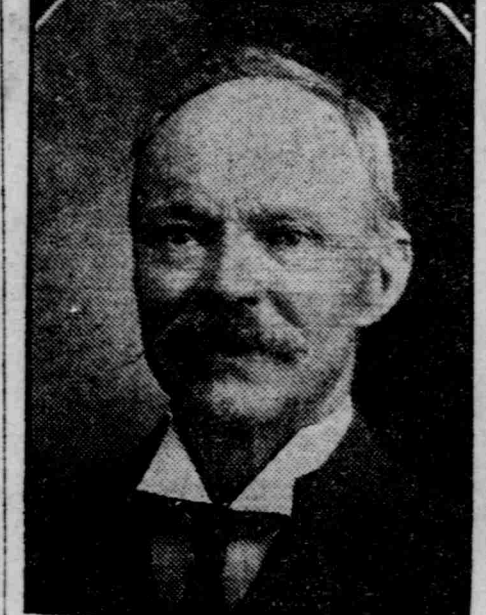

The remains are lying in Taylor's mortuary, and the funeral arrangements will be completed today.

AMUSEMENTS.

The scene of "Texas," presented at the Salt Lake theatre for the first time in this city yesterday matinee and evening, is laid at a Texas ranch house. The hero is a cowboy. The heroine is the ranch owner's daughter, who rides and shoots and is the typical Wild West girl of the stage. There are two villains. One is a half-breed Mexican, who has a grudge against the hero. The other is an English lord who owns the neighboring ranch. The English villain's sister, who is visiting him and who is rather likeable, falls in love with the hero. Jealousy between the two girls, cowboys and others are introduced to furnish "atmosphere." The Mexican villain is a cattle thief. He discovers gold on the ranch belonging to the heroine's father, and sells the secret to the English villain, who plots to get possession of the ranch. The hero, comes a ranger and seeks to get evidence against the Mexican villain for cattle stealing and arrest him. The latter shoots the hero in the back during a dance. Hero becomes convalescent. Tells heroine he loves her. Accepted. Hero, still weak, is sitting in chair alone in room, unarmed, when Mexican villain slips in and attacks him. Hero develops sudden power, wrests revolver from Mexican and chokes him to death. Heroine's father becomes financially embarrassed, and English villain is about to succeed in his plot to get the ranch. English villain seeks to tempt heroine to fly with him to Paris, promising jewels, fine clothes and other things. Hero overhears last part, as villain seeks to embrace heroine. Hero, still weak, is sitting in chair alone, and is about to kill villain when the two women, who love him, intervene and prevent bloodshed. Nevertheless, the English villain goes ahead with his plot to force the heroine's father to sell him the old home.

Just as the deed is about to pass, a letter reaches the hero, telling that oil has been struck on a supposedly worthless piece of land belonging to him. He follows the villain, buys the old ranch and the heroine flies into his arms. This is the outline of the play. There is nothing specially original in plot or characters, and yet the performance pleased the majority of the audience, particularly in the upper part of the house. This is because the average person likes to see villainy foiled, virtue triumph, love have its way, and all the deserving live happily ever after. Dress the old story up reasonably well, and the audience enjoys it.

"Texas" is one of the crop of plays which has followed in the footsteps of "Arizona," and is much on the same order. It is not without merit, despite its lack of originality. It keeps the action going at a lively rate throughout, never becomes unduly "talky," and has some good dialogue, together with one scene which lingers:

"A bold, bad man was this desperado. He struck the town like a wild tornado."

The company as a whole classes as "fair." There are several members who are as good as the hero—which remark not intended to detract from his laugh, for he is a good, average hero.
